HALL'S Vegetable Sicilian HAIR RENEWER

was the first preparation perfectly adapted to cure diseases of the scalp, and the first successful restorer of faded or gray hair to its natural color, growth, and youthful beauty. It has had many imitators, but none have so fully met all the requirements needful for the proper treatment of the hair and scalp. HALL'S HAIR RENEWER has steadily grown in favor, and spread its fame and usefulness to every quarter of the globe. Its unparalleled success can be attributed to but one cause: the entire fulfillment of its promises.

The proprietors have often been surprised at the receipt of orders from remote countries, where they had never made an effort for its introduction.

The use for a short time of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER wonderfully improves the personal appearance. It cleanses the scalp from all impurities, cures all humors, fever, and dryness, and thus prevents baldness. It stimulates the weakened glands, and enables them to push forward a new and vigorous growth. The effects of this article are not transient, like those of alcoholic preparations, but remain a long time, which makes its use a matter of economy.

NOTICE.

IT having been asserted that I am preparing to move to the country and give up my interest in the Sewing Machine business, I take this method of announcing to my friends and the public that there is not a word of truth in it except that I will move my family to the country but will continue to sell the OLD RELI-ABLE SINGER at the same place, second street, opposite postoffice, and run my wagons in the country as heretofore. Competitors please notice the above. I am thankful to the public for the large patronage I have received for the past nine years, and respectfully solicit a share in the future.

Appointments in the German Army.

It is only exceptionally and as a reward for distinguished bravery in action that German non-commissioned officers are promoted officers. Appointments of this kind are so rare that it may be laid down as a rule that a non-commissioned officer cannot hope to receive a commission. He is content with his position, and is loo'ed up to by the mass of the people. Such is not the case, however, with the Porte-Epee-Fahrrich.
This category of non-commissioned officers is entirely distinct from the others.
The Porte-Epee-Fahrrich are, in fact, all aspirant officers, and the rank that they hold is the first step that all must take who desire to enter the corps of officers of the German army. This grade is conferred, in proportion to the number of vacancies, on young men who have been six months in active service, who can produce a certificate of excellence in studies from certain specified seats of public instruction, or who have passed successfully a prescribed examination before a military commission sitting at Berlin. In order to be admitted to this examination an applicant must be either a cadet or must have enlisted as an avantagur; that is, an aspirant to the position of an officer, and as a claimant, by this title, to the enjoyment of certain privileges attaching to this particular condition. These privileges vary according to the corps; a certain latitude is allowed to the Colonels in the treatment of the avantagurs, who are in principle only enlisted men. In Germany the term Cadet is applied to a student at the military schools that have been established to insure the filling of vacancies among the officers of the army. These schools are nine in number, of which seven are in Prussia, one at Dresden, for the Saxon army, and one at Munich for the Bavarian army. Of the seven Prussian schools, six are only primary; they do not finish the education of their scholars, who, at fifteen years of age are all sent to the principal school established at Lichter-feld. The Cadet schools all receive the pupils at ten years of age and upward; the latter can enter only after an examination whose scope varies with the age of the applicant. Although these schools have a military organization, the time spent there is not counted as effective service; consequently, at the expiration of the required number of years of study, the cadets are distributed among the regiments of the different arms of the service, where they commence by serving six months as enlisted men under the same conditions as the avantagurs.
Once that they have been appointed Porte-Epee Fahrrich, the aspirant officers, whether Cadets or avantagurs, must pass through one of the war schools (Kriegsschulen) of the German Empire in order to be promoted officers. It is only after five months' service at least with the rank of ensign porte-epee, and, consequently, after eleven months of active service that they can be sent to the war schools.
There are nine of these schools; the course of studies is from nine to ten months. On leaving the students go to Berlin to undergo before the Military Commission sitting in that city a new examination that decides their fitness for the grade of Second Lieutenant.
But before promotion they must stand another test; they must be accepted by the corps of officers they desire to join.
In each regiment the officers assembled, with the Colonel presiding, decide upon the suitability of the candidate as regards character, honor, social standing, etc. Finally, for the special branches, artillery or engineers, officers must pass through the school of application at Berlin, where the duration of the course is two years. —The United Service.

WIT AND WISDOM.

—A young lawyer recently said that he had settled in a certain town to try and make an honest living, when a bystander facetiously remarked that he ought to succeed, as there was not much competition in his profession.

—Sarony is said to have given Mrs.
Langtry $6,000 for the privilege of photographing her. If he uses the old-fashioned instruments of torture for holding a victim's head steady, the price is none too high. —Philadelphia —An Angle-worm was once observed by a Catfish wriggling about in a Pond.

"Poor dear Thing," said the Catfish:
"My heart bleeds for you. For fear you will be Drowned, I will Take you in Out of the Wet?" To which the Angle-worm replied: "I am Grateful for your Sympathy, but if you Take me in, it Will be your Gills that will Bleed for me." Misinterpreting this remark for Humor, the Catfish swallowed the Angle-worm and Learned too Late that the Angle-worm had previously Swallowed a Limerick hook. By this Fable we are Taught that it is Best to In ure into a Contract before Undertaking it.

Searching for Papa.

A lady in the street met a little girl between two and three years old, evidently lost, and crying bitterly. The lady took the baby's hand and asked where she was going.

"Down to find my papa," was the sobbing reply.

"What is your papa's name?" asked the lady.

"His name is papa."

"Put what is his other name? What does your mamma call him?"

"She calls him papa," persisted the little creature.

The lady then tried to lead her along.
"You had better come with me. I gu as you came this way?"

"Yes, but I don't want to go back. I want to find my papa," replied the little girl, crying afresh, as if her heart would break.

"What do you want of your papa?" asked the lady.

"I want to kiss him."

Just at this time a sister of the child, who had been searching for her, came along and took possession of the little runaway. From inquiry it appeared that the little one's papa, whom she was so earnestly seeking, had recently died, and she, tired of waiting for him to come home, had gone out to find him. —
